

Teach Languages in England

Are you...

- a native speaker of French, German or Spanish?
- interested in training to become a fully-qualified languages teacher in England?
- able to relate well to young people?

Chilean-born Fabián Herrera is currently teaching at Oakwood Park Grammar school through the CILT/British Council GTP, and hopes to gain QTS in July 2005.

The CILT/British Council Graduate Teacher Programme (GTP)...

Corinne Philibert gained QTS on the CILT/British Council GTP at the Imberhorne School, where she had previously worked as a Foreign Language Assistant. She remains at Imberhorne to carry out her induction year.

- is an employment-based route where 'on-the-job' training is combined with professional duties in a school
- leads to the award of Qualified Teacher Status (QTS) on successful completion
- lasts for one year during which you will receive a salary of approximately £13,500
- is open to graduates who have the maturity and relevant experience to cope with an important teaching load at the same time as training.

Lydia Edwige has worked as a Foreign Language Assistant and is now training on the CILT/British Council GTP in North London.

Interested?

CILT and the British Council, in collaboration with European partners, are currently recruiting graduates for the 2005/06 GTP. See our website for further information and application forms:

www.britishcouncil.org/learning-graduate-teacher-programme.htm

Deadline: 31 March 2005

If you are currently a Language Assistant at a school in England and are interested in training on the scheme at your school, please discuss this with the Head of Languages and ask him/her to read the information available at: www.cilt.org.uk/training/gtp.htm